BIG AUTO STOLEN BY JOY RIDERS

A Five Passenger Car Was Found Near Libertyville
and Causes Mystery

FOUND IN BAD CONDITION

The Car Was Hauled Out of the Slough and Owner Was Quirky Located in Chicago

Mystery for a time surrounded the discovery Saturday morning of a valuable Cadillac 1912 auto in the slough in the woods on the Connor farm one mile east of Libertyville, a car which evidently had been abandoned by persons who stole it in Chicago a few days ago. Subsequent inquiry showed that the car belonged to a man named Hartman of Chicago and he hastened to Libertyville to claim the car.

The machine, a five-passenger touring car, was found in the woods and slough a half-mile off Rockland Road and just how the driver managed to get to that point and why he went there is a mystery. One tire was off and the rim was badly broken, showing that they had run far without a tire.

Another wheel had a blanket wrapped about the tire, showing that the driver had sought to supplant the chains with robes.

The car was found by Mike Carroll who happened to be passing through the woods. He notified Marshall Limbery of Libertyville, who with George Quentlin, went to the woods and hauled the car to the Quentlin garage. They called detective headquarters, Chicago, and shortly afterwards received a call from Mr. Hartman, who said he would hasten to Libertyville, as he was sure it was his car.

The entire story leaked out, however, upon the return of two young girls to their homes in Chicago and detectives are now working to discover the identity of the men in the case.

Ether Burns, 14 years old, 507 Lincoln Parkway and Alma Freis, 16 years old, 517 Lincoln Parkway, disappeared from their homes Wednesday evening and were thought to have been kidnapped until they reached home Saturday, with their story of the wild ride with its painful experiences of hunger and exposure.

The Burns girl related the story as follows: "Alma Freis and I had a date to meet two fellows at Western avenue and Madison street Wednesday night. My fellow's name is Al. I don't know his last name. I don't know the name of Alma's fellow either. Well, we went to the place and I met my fellow but Alma's was not there.

My fellow had three other fellows with him. He called them George, Bob and Andrew. Bob had an auto and Al and George and Andrew were in the machine with him. Al asked us to take a ride to a north side amusement park and we consented.

When we reached the park the four fellows refused to take us in there and drove away. They drove us to Libertyville. We got there about 10:30 Wednesday night and were going along the road when one of the tires of the machine broke. We couldn't go any further and Alma and I had to sleep in the machine. The young men slept on the ground.

The next morning George and Andy came back to Chicago on a freight train. Al and Bob got a man to fix the machine and we started back to Chicago, but the machine broke down about ten minutes later.

We stayed around the machine all day Thursday and Al and Bob got some food from some farmhouses. Alma and I ate in the machine. We had to sleep in the machine Thursday and Friday nights too.

About 1 o'clock Saturday morning we got disgusted and told Bob and Al. They had some money and they put us on a train for Chicago, they came with us and put us on a street car when we got to the depot in Chicago. Then they went away. Alma and I couldn't sleep in the machine and we were terribly tired when we got home. They treated us fine and were awful good to us. They said they were going to get a tire in Chicago and return and get the auto at Libertyville.

Detectives are trying to find the four young men to question them.

MASONS HOLD MEETING

A Number of Lodges From Various Towns
Attended at Millburn

There were visitors present from Antioch, Grayslake, Wauconda, Lake Villa, Waukegan, Libertyville and Chicago. A very enjoyable and substantial supper was served and everyone voted that the wives of the Masons of the Antioch lodge at Millburn knew how to prepare and serve a very refreshing repast.

After the work was completed, C. T. Heydecker, of Waukegan, gave a talk on "Reminiscences of Antioch Lodge, No. 127," being largely a historical nature.

The dispensation for the formation of the Antioch lodge was granted by Grand Master E. B. Ames and Grand Secretary H. C. Reynolds, on May 24, 1883. GERTRUDE BOOTH PASSED AWAY IN WYOMING

The many friends of Miss Gertrude Booth formerly of Trevor were pained to learn of her death which occurred at the Grand Avenue hospital at Laramie, Wyoming, on Tuesday of last week. Complications following an operation for appendicitis being the cause. Her condition failing to improve following the operation, and her parents sent for, her mother hastened to her side and remained to the end, accompanying her body back to her old home for burial.

Gertrude Laurence Booth was the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Booth of Trevor, she was born in the town of Salem, October 26, 1873 and grew to womanhood in that vicinity. She was prominent in educational circles and taught several successful terms in Keneshia county and one equally successful in Antioch school. Later she continued her chosen work in the western states and had just closed a year's work as principal of the school at Laramie.

She is survived by her father and mother and three sisters Mrs. Lubeno of Trevor; Mrs. Patterson and Mrs. Swan who reside in the west. The remains were, according to her request, brought back to Trevor. The funeral being held at the Lubeno home Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock with Rev. Stixrud officiating. The very large cortege of friends who gathered at the last sad rites showed the esteem in which the deceased was held by all. The interment was at Liberty cemetery.

The Power of the Press.

A newspaper can drop the same thought into a thousand minds at the same moment. A newspaper is an adviser who does not require to be sought, but comes to you briefly every day of common weal, without distracting your private affairs. Newspapers, therefore, become more necessary in proportion as men become more equal individuals, and more to be feared. To suppose that they only serve to protect freedom would be to diminish their importance; they maintain civilization.—De Tocqueville.

FOX LAKE IS NOT GOVT. WATER

John C. Ames Collector of Customs Has Rendered
Decision

AUTHORITIES NOT TO BLAME

Mr. Ames' Ruling Was Made In Answer
To Questions Propounded by Arch
McArthur of Waukegan

That the waters of Fox lake are not used, or susceptible of being used, as a highway of commerce and therefore are not government waters and not governed by the same rules regulating motor boats, is the opinion of John C. Ames, Treasury department, United States Customs Service.

Sunday, May 26th, the corner's jury impaneled by Coroner John L. Taylor to inquire into and ascertain the true cause of the death of the seven Chicagoans whose bodies were recovered from the depths of this alleged bottomless lake, found that the seven people came to their deaths as the result of law violations.

But John C. Ames, collector of customs, Chicago district, holds that Fox lake is not government waters, and finds that the coroner's jury erred in returning a verdict blaming federal authorities for the tragedy.

Mr. Ames made the following statement to Mr. Arch McArthur, collector of customs, Waukegan port.

"I received your letter of the 29th ultimo, relative to the sinking of a motor boat and drowning of seven persons on Fox lake, Illinois, and asking whether these are government waters and are governed by the same rules regulating motor boats as Waukegan on Lake Michigan.

"It is the opinion of this office that the waters of Fox lake are not government waters, and motorboats on Fox lake are not subject to government regulations and the act of June 9, 1910 do not require documents; and steam vessels or this like do not require government inspection and license cause and enrollment.

"It is the understanding of this office that the waters of Fox lake are not used or susceptible of being used as a highway for commerce, as they do not form in their ordinary condition by themselves, or by uniting with other waters, a continuous highway over which commerce is or may be carried on with other states or foreign countries in the customary modes in which such commerce is conducted by water.

"Whereas the Treasury department, United States Customs Service, has reported the waters Fox lake are not government waters, and whereas, there are no state laws which regulate motor boats, Lake county authorities believe that no individual, or company can be held responsible for the Fox lake tragedy.

Mr. Ames' ruling was made in answer to the following questions filed by Arch McArthur, deputy collector of customs, of Waukegan. The questions follow: First—Is Fox lake government waters? Second—Are the motor boats thereon subject to the same rules and regulations as they are at Waukegan, on Lake Michigan?

Third—Whose duty is it to see that these rules are complied with?

Fourth—Are there other waters in or touching Lake county besides Lake Michigan, which the government holds jurisdiction as to the equipment, as to handling of motor boats, either used for carrying passengers, for hire or for pleasure.

TELEPHONE COMPANY SELLS OUT

Chicago Telephone Company
Takes Over Entire Holdings of Independent Co.

DEAL WAS CLOSED TUESDAY

New Owners Will Reconstruct and Improve
The Entire System Which Has
About One Thousand Subscribers

One of the biggest telephone deals ever known in Lake County or northern Illinois, was consummated Tuesday when the Chicago Telephone Company deposited its check with the stockholders in the Lake County Telephone Company and took possession of all wires, apparatus, equipment, and exchanges operated by that company in a large part of Lake County. Financial details were not made public, although it is known that the check was in five figures. Immediate possession was given.

All districts in Lake County except the vicinity of Antioch and Fox Lake are included in the purchase.

For about three years this company has been under the direct management of Ben H. Miller of Libertyville as president and Jesse S. Hyatt as general manager. Although not possessed of technical knowledge and experience in telephone work, these officers have been eminently successful in the undertaking, the list of subscribers having grown steadily.

Charles T. Ford, now having a district comprising the lake shore and the exchanges of Fox Lake, Lake Villa and Antioch, will have supervision of the of the new territory.

The purchase of the Lake County Telephone company's plant is a result of progress in telephony. For years the company has operated an exchange system with evident satisfaction to its patrons. However it found that expansion of the plant to accommodate new customers involved large expenditures of money. Growth also required more expert supervision.

Years before the telephone development of today could be predicted, when few local companies were in existence because of the difficulties in construction and meager use of service, and when investment in telephones seemed hazardous F. Clark and F. Lovell of Libertyville launched what was known as the Lake County Telephone company. Neither was in position to invest large sums and had the venture ended as many predicted they would have lost. But the reverse proving true they were enabled to witness its entrance into prosperity.

Probably one of the most notable of its steps lay in the formation of an agreement with the Chicago Telephone company whereby they used the latter's toll lines exclusively.

The exchanges affected by the deal, with the number of subscribers at each is as follows: Grayslake, 143; Lake Zurich, 50; Libertyville, 604; Round Lake, 78; Wauconda, 91.

The Lake County Telephone company was the biggest independent company in the county and its absorption by the Chicago company leaves only the vicinities of Gurnee, Millburn, Russell and Antioch with the service of an independent company.

What Dress Is to Woman.
Fashion is woman's literature. Dress is the expression of her personal style. By dress she conveys the outward expression of her taste, of her skill, and even of her aesthetic individuality. It is thus that she contrives to charm the eyes of the arts, the art containing all the others it is not the expression of her characteristic style, as we have said, but it is her palette, her poem, her theatrical setting, her song of triumph.

The Deadly Dust.
Out of every thousand of those whose occupations call for constant work in dusty quarters, five die of consumption, according to German official figures; whereas among those who are not exposed to the action of dust only two out of a thousand die of the disease named.

MAY DISMISS CO. DOCTOR

New Plan Is Being Agitated By Sam
Schwartz of Waukegan

By a petition that is being circulated and which will be presented, it is said, to the Lake county board of supervisors at their present session, practically every physician in Waukegan and Lake county will ask that the board adopt a new policy of caring for charity patients and that the present plan of electing a county physician and paying him a salary of $2,000 a year be discontinued.

Instead it will be asked that the following plan be adopted: Turn the $2,000 over to the Jane McAllister hospital association each year and have it apply toward the expense of maintaining the charity patients who are sent to the hospital.

At the same time practically every physician in the county has agreed to donate his services to charity patients. Supervisor Conrad & Hart has agreed to donate the use of his ambulance for charity patients any place inside the city—in cases where the ambulance is called into the county a special arrangement will be made. The plan is an entirely new one and has met with the approval of every physician to whom it has been suggested.

Samuel Schwartz is the man who first began to work up enthusiasm in the plan. He paid personal visits to doctors all over Waukegan and to many in the county, pointing out to them how the plan would work out. He also has seen several members of the board of supervisors who say that the suggested plan appeals to them.

"Many of the physicians that I have seen have told me that they donate much of their services anyway and that they are perfectly willing to adopt the new plan," Mr. Schwartz said.

Under the present system no charity patient may enter the hospital unless passed by the county physician. As a result, during the last year, beginning June 1, 1911 and ending June 1 of this year, the hospital received but $182.50 out of the $2,000. The year previous during the same period the hospital received but $130.70. We are not blaming the county physician—it is the fault of the system which we wish to have changed is his statement.

CHAUFFEUR ARRESTED FOR SPEEDING

Charged with exceeding the speed limit, James Jorgenson, chauffeur for ex-alderman Maypole of Chicago who has a summer home at Fox Lake was arrested at Libertyville Tuesday. It is charged that he was driving his machine through the village at a speed of forty miles an hour. He was given a hearing before Justice Beswick and was fined $25 and costs. Marshall Limbery pursued Jorgenson in another automobile but would not have caught him if Jorgenson's machine had not caught on fire as it was crossing the electric railroad tracks. Jorgenson declared that his wife was at the point of death in Chicago and said that he was hurrying to her bedside.

Mr. Maypole was called up on the telephone at his Fox Lake home and requested that Jorgenson be allowed to join his wife in Chicago who was very sick. He asked that the machine be held for security and said he would pay the fine Wednesday morning. After Jorgenson had been fined he did not seem to be in a hurry to get to Chicago and waited until Wednesday morning returning with his employer, his machine having been repaired in the Libertyville garage.

NEW WEAPONS AGAINST DIVORCE EVIL

A new weapon against the divorce evil was devised and adopted at the Chicago Methodist ministers' meeting at the Desplaines camp meeting ground.

Ministers present adopted a resolution requesting all clergymen to require a ten days' notice prior to the performance of a marriage in which one of the parties has been divorced. This amount of time, it was said, was necessary for the examination of the records in the case. Such a procedure, it was argued would act as a check on the "crime" of the erasure of marital vows by court order and in addition would prevent violations of the Illinois statute prohibiting the remarriage of divorced persons within one year of the of the decree.

TO GET LARGE FORTUNE

Money Amounting to $300,000
000 is Supposed to be in Scotland Bank

MRS. DOWIE GETS LARGESUM

For a Long Period Money Averaging $100 a Day Was Sent to Edinburgh Bank
by John Alexander Dowie

While Mrs. John Alexander Dowie, widow of the late "prophet," Elizabeth the Second, has been living in poverty, some times in actual want in her little cottage in Zion City, watching the remains of her husband for fear his successor, Wilbur Glenn Volney, will have them removed, a fortune, in the name of John Alexander Dowie, has been sitting idle in a bank in Edinburgh, Scotland.

That instead of being in straitened circumstances she is in reality wealthy beyond the fondest dreams of avarice and if she can prove her claim to this money will be worth in her own right up to $300,000 or more, is the belief of those who know Dowie closely and personally. That if she is able to secure possession of this vast sum of money of which there seems to be no reason for doubt, she may carry out her desires to bring back to strength and power the old faction in the city of Love which acknowledged John Alexander Dowie as their only leader, the belief of many. For some time she has had this desire deeply entrenched in her heart and it was for this reason it is supposed, that she again took up her residence in Zion City after having lived away from her former home for some years following the death of her husband.

This startling information, strange as it may seem, has after a decade been told by a confidential servant in the former Dowie mansion. At the time of Dowie's death, when the money in the bank across the seas would have saved his religious kingdom his mind became feeble, and it is thought that he forgot all about the vast sum which he had on deposit in this vault in Scotland.

Every Saturday afternoon for several years before his death Dowie would sit at his typewriter in his private office and with his own hand write a letter to his foreign bankers, enclosing a check for a large sum of money. Some times the draft was for only a thousand; other times it is said that he sent as much as twenty thousand dollars. In all it is thought that he sent several hundred thousand dollars away in this manner. All the time unbeknownst to his wife or to his family. Just before his death he knew of these proceedings and the maid has now told the story.

Dowie would not even trust his most confidential secretary with this money—he did it all with his own hand. Laboriously he wrote to his bankers and signed the checks with his now world-famous signature. It is said that the prophet did not miss a single Saturday for at least five years. Every week he would send this money abroad and as far as is known none of it has ever been drawn out. It is still there annually compounding interest. A banker stated that in his opinion the fortune would now amount to several hundred thousand dollars and perhaps more.

Apparently Dowie was saving money for a rainy day, but when the rainy day came, he was unable to touch it. The story runs that every letter was registered and that they went regularly from his office.

It is said that this money was deposited at the time Dowie was making money at the rate of $300,000 a year. It was sent away without even the knowledge of his secretary. A few hundred here and there, at that time would never be missed, but as a last resort it would have been a gift from God to the prophet in his declining years.

This announcement will undoubtedly be a great surprise to all followers of the Dowie faith. Even his most trusted servants did not know what was being done. With one exception. The servant who mailed the letters knew where they were going and what was in them, but this servant was sworn to secrecy. It is probable that a letter will be dispatched to the bank in Scotland and that the money in the sum will be recovered by the estate of John Alexander Dowie.

12 MORE FOR TAFT

PRESIDENT GAINS CONTESTED DELEGATES FROM INDIANA—MAKING 54 TO DATE.

COMMITTEE SESSION STORMY

Chief Executive's Forces Now Claim 560 Votes on Temporary Organization, Roll Call of Convention.

Chicago, June 12.—Twelve Taft delegates from Indiana were seated by the Republican national committee here Monday after the most stormy session the committee has held since it assembled.

The four Taft delegates-at-large were seated by a vote of 52 to 0, the Roosevelt members, seeing their hopelessness, voting with the Taft forces. The committee also seated the Taft delegates from the First, Third, Fourth and Thirteenth districts—eight in all—a total of twelve for the day, against none for Roosevelt.

In the First district fight the vote was unanimous, the Roosevelt men joining with the Taft members of the committee. In the Third district there was a snatching of unidentified "noes" in the viva voce ballot, but no roll call was asked. In the Fourth the Roosevelt contest was withdrawn and the Taft men were seated unanimously.

In the Thirteenth there was a real fight, but the Taft men were seated by a vote of 36 to 14. This contest also required more than two hours for its hearing, because of a battle over the presentation of 71 affidavits by the Roosevelt men. By a vote of 20 to 30 the committee refused to permit them to be admitted, because they had not made their appearance soon enough for their examination by the Taft men. Despite this vote the committee directed that the affidavits be read. This makes 54 contested delegates already seated for Taft.

The Indiana delegates-at-large thus confirmed are Col. Harry S. New and ex-Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks of Indianapolis, ex-Representative James E. Watson of Rushville and Joseph E. Oliver of South Bend. The defeated contestants are ex-Senator Albert J. Reveridge of Indianapolis, Edwin M. Lee of Lawrenceburg, ex-Representative Fred K. Landis of Logansport and Charles H. Campbell of Shelbyville.

The Taft forces now figure that on roll call the temporary organization of the Republican national convention will disclose 560 votes for William H. Taft. This is a margin of exactly 20 above a majority.

On the other hand, friends of Roosevelt are claiming that in spite of the domination of the national committee by the Taft forces with its corollary of a Taft majority in the temporary roll call that T. R. will control the committee on credentials.

4,000 TROOPS READY HIGH COURT DECREES

PRESIDENT GOMEZ OF CUBA WARNED BY U. S. OF PROBABLE INTERVENTION.

MUST SUPPRESS REBELLION

General Wood Orders Troops in Readiness to Take American Army to Island—Posts That Will Take Part in Demonstration.

Washington, June 10.—The government has ordered 4,000 troops to hold themselves in instant readiness for a movement on Cuba. This followed a note to President Gomez, on Friday, stating that the United States will be compelled to intervene unless he is able to immediately suppress the insurrection.

General Wood immediately ordered four transports to be sent and provisioned for the voyage. The Kilauea and the Meade will proceed immediately from Newport News to New York and the McClellan and the Sumner to Savannah for the embarkation of soldiers.

The expeditionary force ordered to hold itself in readiness includes the Fifth infantry stationed at Plattsburg barracks, N. Y.; the Twenty-ninth infantry with about a thousand men at Fort McPherson, Atlanta, Ga.; the Eleventh cavalry, complete at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.; the mountain battery of the Fourth field artillery and a company of the signal corps at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo.

The note to Gomez was provoked by cablegram from Arthur Baupre, American minister in Havana, intimating a dangerous lack of activity if not of sincerity on the part of the Cuban president.

Minister Baupre reports that the negro insurgents attacked the Toledo sugar mill only six miles from Havana.

Colonel Acen, who was appointed chief of the secret police in Havana by President Gomez, was arrested for treason.

Reversed commerce court decision in the case of the interstate commerce commission against a number of eastern railroads involving the maintenance of rates on coal for steaming purposes different from rates on coal used for other purposes.

Affirmed the validity of the Indiana state law of 1907 regulating the sale of commercial feedstuffs and requiring submission of samples on the ground that it does not conflict with federal pure food act.

Awarded the Westinghouse Electric company approximately $139,000 from the Wagner Electric company.

Chief Justice White defined the powers of the commerce court in the cases decided, declaring in effect that the commerce court could not substitute its own opinion for that of the interstate commerce commission and that the court has taken to itself powers not conferred by law.

East St. Louis, Ill., June 10.—The C. L. Gray Construction company of East St. Louis filed a petition in bankruptcy in the federal court at Danville. The company alleged it has liabilities of $1,400,000 and assets of $450,000. Thirty Illinois and Missouri banks are named as some of the creditors in amounts from $1,500 to $70,000. One of the causes of the failure stated in the petition was the building of the Liberty Tower building in New York.

Total Taft gain	72

Chicago, June 11.—The Republican national committee turned forty-eight southern delegates into the "certain for Taft column" on Saturday in its decisions upon contests from Arkansas, Florida and Georgia. This brings the total accretion in the sessions of Friday and Saturday up to 72, while none has been added to the Roosevelt list.

Ten of the Georgia districts—20 delegates—went to Taft in one blanket decision, both sides agreeing to their being decided upon the same arguments. The four delegates-at-large from the state also were given to Taft along with the two remaining districts with two delegates apiece.

Twelve delegates from Florida and eight from Arkansas were given to Taft in addition to the Georgia delegates. So far every Taft delegate who has faced a contest has been placed on the convention temporary roll, and in practically every case this has been done with the Roosevelt committee's consent.

The cases passed upon were: Arkansas—Third, Fourth, Fifth and Seventh districts. Eight delegates to Taft.

Florida—Six delegates-at-large and three districts. Twelve delegates to Taft.

Georgia—Four delegates-at-large and all of the twelve districts. Twenty-eight delegates to Taft.

Southern politics was given a public airing before the committee. Starting with the last three districts of Arkansas, the committee went through that state and then listened to Florida and Georgia's political woes. In these last two states all of the Taft delegates had been contested by the Rooseveltians. Full hearing was given every case and only in one instance did the Roosevelt leaders ask for a test of strength. They lost by a vote of 41 to 10.

In the Fifth Arkansas district, where charges of violence and fraud were made by both sides, Committee member Burman of Kentucky asked that both delegates be seated with half a vote each. He lost by the above vote. On this roll call, Du Pont of Delaware, who had heretofore voted with the Roosevelt people, switched to the Taft contingent.

23 SINK IN SUBMARINE

French Battleship, St. Louis Rams Vendemlire as Smaller Craft Appear Under Ship's Bow.

Cherbourg, June 11.—France suffered another marine disaster and lost her fourth submarine when the Vendemlire, in mimic warfare Saturday off Cherbourg peninsula, was crushed down by the battleship Saint Louis and disappeared in 150 feet of water with the 23 members of the crew.

The submarine undoubtedly was ripped apart by the steel prow of the battleship and all hope has been abandoned of saving the crew. An official statement issued by the minister of marine fixes the number of men aboard as 23, including the commander, Lieutenant Prioul, and Ensign Audie.

"Although a board of inquiry was immediately appointed, it is said that no blame attaches to the Saint Louis, as the Vendemlire came to the surface directly under the battleship's bow."

INCIDENTS BEFORE THE BIG REPUBLICAN CONTEST IN THE COLISEUM AT CHICAGO

Chicago, June 10.—The chief duty of the Chicago hotel clerk just now is to point out the political celebrities. It has been necessary to describe the big men of the convention for persons seeking them so many times that John Burk, head clerk of the Annex, can give finest identifying details of attire and build of a statesman in a moment.

A great part of the population of the hotel consists of newspaper, magazine, and free lance photographers. Twelve snapshooters were in an area about Senator J. M. Dixon of Montana, Colonel Roosevelt's manager, when he consented to be photographed on his arrival.

Before the senator reached the hotel on Wednesday two men had been led out on Michigan avenue by the camera squad in the belief that each of the accommodating strangers was the Montanan. One photographer would be "lipped off" that the tall, white-haired man in the Panama is Senator Dixon.

The stranger at once would be lapped out in the street for different poses in the sun. Of the two cases of mistaken identity one was A. B. Butler of Washington, a Taft camp aid. It is said the other was a Boston linen salesman. He did not deny he was Senator Dixon, and posed graciously with and without his hat and facing in different advantageous angles.

A New One From Texas.
Col. Cecil Lyon of the Texas delegation, and an irrefragable supporter of Roosevelt, had a new story to tell to take the place of his old one about the catclaw in Yoakum county, Texas, where a Democratic county convention instructed for Roosevelt, causing Wilson supporters to bolt.

"I was walking down the street with Charles Hilles in Washington the other day," began Colonel Lyon, after some one had said President Taft's secretary had arrived at the Blackstone hotel.

"A small delivery wagon passed," the colonel continued. "I looked up and saw four large volumes stacked on top with the titles facing us. Three of the books were reports of the Republican conventions of 1900, 1904 and 1908. The fourth was 'Problems of the Day,' by William H. Taft. I directed Mr. Hilles' attention to the load of books. He seemed offended."

Borah's Bushy Hair.
Senator Borah of Idaho is one of the few big men of the convention who cannot be called picturesque; unless his bushy hair entitles him to that description. It is said his only reason for wearing so much hair is to conceal a bad scar on the back of his head received in an accident in his youth.

Mr. Borah, like John H. Kalamit, a Nevada delegate, has a round, chubby, Buster Brown type of physiognomy. His dignity, however, is such that none would think of calling him "Cupid"—and that is the brown-skinned islander's nickname in congress.

Has His Name on $5 Bill.
A southern delegate was much excited over the appearance of a tall negro at the Coliseum annex who figured in several conferences.

"Have you a $5 bill?" asked a friend. When the currency was produced the friend called attention to the signature of the registrar of the treasury, Judson Lyon.

"That same dark person over there is Judson Lyon, delegate from Georgia," was the explanation.

Urey Woodson's Story.
Urey Woodson, secretary of the Democratic national committee, is telling a story which has what he claims is a moral.

"You Republicans," says Mr. Woodson, "remind me of old Colonel Guffin, who, although a Democrat, lived in a stronghold of Republicanism. One winter he blew in and asked to be sworn in as a member of the Democratic legislature."

"Colonel, did you sure enough beat a Republican?"

"Suh, I beat three of 'em at once." "Now that is what we are going to do in less numbers. Get together and scrap, but after it is over watch us Democrats beat two of you, Taft and Teddy, all at once."

Want Sherman Renominated.

Former Governor Franklin Murphy of New Jersey took his seat with the national committee minus the vice-presidential boom which he had with him four years ago. This year Mr. Murphy is slaying the praises of Vice-President Sherman for another term.

"I know that custom is against renominating a vice-president," he said, "but there is a strong current in favor of renominating Vice-President Sherman. It will probably be an ensign man and all the gossip I have heard has been for Sherman."

Mr. Murphy added that the "vice-presidential bee" has ceased to buzz in his direction.

A group of out-of-town newspaper representatives were on the point of making an ovation in the vicinity of the Coliseum of emergency cafes for reference in times of busy seasons.

"Col. Cecil Lyon has just put through a motion making newspaper men guests at a cafe service to be installed in headquarters at once," said a committeeman who left the session before adjournment.

Colonel Lyon was proposed for dark horse candidate—immediately and unanimously.

Good Nature the Rule.
Good nature is the rule among all of the national committeemen and delegates. None is too harassed by puzzling political entanglements to deny any one a smile and handshake.

"An old crab has lots of luck in this game—I don't think!" laughed Senator Dixon, Roosevelt's manager, after he had passed out a dozen pulsating hand groups. Then he walked over to former Senator Dick-Taft contest director—in the lobby of national committee headquarters at the Coliseum annex and slapped him on the back.

"Lo," said Mr. Dixon.

"Light back at you, senator," smiled Mr. Dick.

Those who were near the two chiefs of the hostile camps could hear a hoarse "Joo" and "Charley" being exchanged at times. They were like old college chums, friendly eye twinkling scenes between chiefs and lieutenants and subalterns of the opposing forces were common.

One noteworthy meeting that started amicably and ended in a torrid argument was between Joseph Keating of Indiana and Congressman Lucius C. Littauer of New York.

Importance of the Bell Boys.

The bell boys of the big hotels have been pressed into service for all sorts of duties. They not only carry ice water and life preservers to the various headquarters and rooms of delegates, but also serve in the capacity of page, "state house messenger," marshal of delegations, office boy, introducer, and general headquarters attaché.

There are hundreds of different documents to be exchanged between headquarters, with verbal explanations to go to the men in charge.

"Here's the list of delegates from Alabama with the Twenty-third district left out," a delegation chief explains to the boy in buttons. "Take it up to Senator Blank with my compliments, and inform him I will send the rest to him in half an hour."

When a hop was dispatched with a copy of the recommendations of the rules committee, to be submitted to the national committee, a senator remarked:

"That young man has a mission of more widespread influence than that of any other boy in America."

"Who-o-o," sighed a bell boy. He was counting change. "Nine hours on the hop and only $1.60 in tips. I am going to vote the Democratic ticket straight!"

Teddy's Bulldog.

When the Roosevelt press bureau arrived from Washington they brought with them a new campaign song, which is causing a smile even among the Taft delegations. It is to the tune of "Casey Jones."

Teddy's gotta dawg, but he nint no bound.

He's a square jawed bull, and his face is round.

His legs is short, and he's close to the ground.

And you bet they ain't kickin' Teddy's dawg around.

CHORUS.

Square jawed bull, and his face is round.

Square jawed bull, and his face is round.

Short legged bull, close to the ground.

And you bet they ain't kickin' Teddy's bull around.

The Democratic dawg, the unlucky bound.

That the boys have all been kickin' around.

Is the same old dawg that's been stuck in 'round.

Since old Abe Lincoln came to Washington town.

And now he comes back, the measly bound.

With his face and his tail still hangin' down.

The hungry, sly, old lop eared bound.

No wonder the boys have been kickin' round.

All Taft Types.

It has been noticed that a great part of the delegates that have arrived are robust men. "All Taft types," commented an admirer of the president. Chief among the heavyweights is A. M. Stevenson, Colorado national committeeman, who hails from Denver. Mr. Stevenson weighs more than 300 pounds.

Delegation From Hawaii.

Sent in a corner of the Pompano room at the Congress hotel was a little party composed of the Hawaiian delegation. "Prince Kalaniana'olaha," generally called "Prince Cupid," and C. A. Rice, delegates from the island; H. L. Holstein, national committeeman; A. Horner, secretary to the delegation; and Colonel S. Parker, the "Mark Hanna of Hawaii," made up the party.

"It can't be all work and no play," said the prince.

Since a Roosevelt delegation came into the Congress singing a parody on the "Hound Dog," Taft supporters have begun to put themselves in practice for the campaign yells.

Short, long, loud and sharp, they come in all varieties. Some are for use before and some after the nomination. A mourning song is being written, bemoaning the fate of "Teddy," and several in jubilation, in anticipation of the success of Taft. A farewell yell will be put in use later. The last line tells the whole story. "We're going home, we're broke."

STANDS BIG STRAIN

Physical Endurance of Taft Is Extraordinary.

IS DUE TO HIS TEMPERAMENT

Beautiful Lawn Party at the White House for International Red Cross Delegates—Plan of Comptroller Murray to Check Bank Defalcations.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—President Taft has been through some strenuous campaigning this year. He has made not only political addresses, but certainly 50 or more speeches on occasions non-political. Mr. Taft is an extraordinarily big man, physically, and yet the strain of hard work does not seem to tell upon him as it does upon other men who carry much less weight. Friends of the president ascribe his continued good condition to his buoyant disposition. In other words, his temperament stands him a friend during his hard work.

There have been one or two lawn parties at the White House this year, and before the spring season closes there probably will be one or two more. At one party the guests of honor were the visiting delegates to the International Red Cross convention. The president and Mrs. Taft, standing under the trees on the south lawn of the White House, received distinguished guests from all over the world. The president had just returned from a week's campaigning and was to leave again at midnight, but he stood the three hours "social siege" as if he had been resting instead of working. Physically, the president of the United States is a wonder to that part of mankind which gets a chance to see him.

At the Red Cross Reception.

The lawn parties at the White House are the most picturesque social events of the year in Washington. It is not probable that those who do not actually view the scene can realize the extraordinary beauty of the grounds of the White House in May and June. There are many trees, much shrubbery and in some places a profusion of flowers. At the back is the house itself, a fine specimen of colonial architecture, pure white and impressive, with each of its great pillars adding a line of beauty. The day of the reception on the lawn given for the Red Cross people was perfect. The thermometer was at 70, and the sun was in a cloudless sky. The ladies all wore white, while the men, or most of them, for it was largely an official reception, wore in uniform, many of them being in the picturesque garb of the Latin-American countries and Europe and the countries of the far east.

Present at that reception, unknown to most of the guests and hearing herself with extreme diffidence, was a woman who had just returned from China. She has been connected for years with a school maintained by the Protestant Episcopal church in the heart of the flowery kingdom. When civil war broke out in China recently and the young Chinese started on their crusade, the woman who was a guest at the White House reception left off her teaching in the college and went into the field as a volunteer Red Cross nurse. She had many hard experiences, but not as hard as it was expected that she would have. China ordinarily is not considered thoroughly civilized, but even in the midst of the madness of civil strife it was found that both factions of the Chinese observed the Red Cross regulations as implicitly as would the countries of the west.

To Stop Bank Defalcations.

Comptroller of the Currency Lawrence O. Murray has made a study of some of the methods by which banks occasionally are defrauded by their employees. He has had a number of specific cases put before him and as a result of his investigations he thinks that such unfortunate occurrences as these and many that have preceded them may be avoided in the future if the national banks will co-operate with his office in the plan which he has just suggested to them. This is nothing more nor less than the simple device of sending to his office a carbon copy of the semi-annual report made by the examining committee of the board of directors of each bank—the report which states in black and white what the directors think of their own bank.

When Mr. Murray assumed office about 3,000, or between 30 and 40 per cent of the national banks, had no by-laws and therefore made no provision for examining committees. They now all have adopted by-laws suggested by the comptroller and are fitted out with regularly appointed examining committees. When carbon copies of the reports are sent to the comptroller a study will be made of them which will be supplementary to the study made in the bank. In this way it is believed that the depositors and stockholders will have a double check against loss from defalcation and forgery.

Some Specimen Cases.

Here are some of the cases which were made the property of the currency to act:

George W. Coleman, bookkeeper of the National City bank of Cambridge, Mass., kept a small personal account on the individual ledger. He would "kite" his own checks through a Boston curb broker and abstract them from the mail as they came back from the clearing house, as the cashier never saw the contents of the clearing house letters and simply posted the totals of the letters on the cash book. The general ledger, and the general cash book were kept by the cashier. In order to make the total amount of deposits in the individual ledger agree with the amount shown by the general ledger, Coleman resorted to false debit entries (plugs) and the reduction of balances when carrying forward accounts. Within five years Coleman looted the bank of more than $200,000 and he is now serving a long term in the state prison. The directors noticed the reduction of the deposits in the bank, but attributed it to compulsion. The defalcation was not discovered until the books were examined by the auditors of the Harvard Trust company, to which concern the directors had agreed to sell out.

Henry M. Denring, cashier of the Alhambra National bank of Albion, Mich., is serving a term in prison. A search of the cashier's desk, after the closing of the bank, disclosed leaves removed from the loose leaf individual and savings depositors' ledgers carrying credit balances aggregating $185,317.41, which of course represented a shortage in each of an equal amount. This method of "covering" had been in vogue since the bank began business. The cashier, stated to the examiner that he found no difficulty at all in deceiving the directors. The bills receivable were added by him on an adding machine. The list was checked with the notes of the directors, but at no time, the cashier stated, did the directors check the total of the adding machine list with the general ledger. The assistant cashier stated that practically all of the manufacturing customers' notes owned by the bank were forged.

Not Balanced for Three Years.

Earl Stannard, bookkeeper of a national bank at Pomona, Cal., is under arrest on the charge of abstracting more than $150,000 of the funds of the bank. One of his methods it is alleged was that employed by Coleman—of extracting the clearing items from the morning mail before they were seen by the cashier or others and destroying all items in favor of an old company in which he was interested. Of the fifty-six pages of inactive accounts, thirty-six, it is charged, were falsified for a total of more than $100,000. Not for over three years had the active and inactive ledgers been footed and balanced on the same day.

F. T. Arnold, cashier of the First National bank of New Berlin, N. Y., is awaiting trial because of an estimated shortage of about $150,000 in the deposit account. He is charged with issuing certificates of deposit which he failed to register, or if registered the entries were for a lower amount than the face of the certificate called for. It is understood that no one but Arnold was allowed to make any entries in the certificate of deposit register, which is wholly in his handwriting and presents many evidences of erasures and changes in figures. It is said he concealed his work in several other ways.

Insect Quarantine Bill.

Representative Simmons of New York on behalf of the committee on agriculture has reported favorably a bill to enable the secretary of agriculture to establish quarantine districts for plant diseases and insect pests and to regulate the importation of nursery stock and other plant products. Mr. Simmons says that under our present laws the United States has become a dumping ground for diseased and insect-infested plants.

If the Simmons bill is passed the United States will be able to retaliate upon Austria-Hungary, France, Germany, Holland, Switzerland and Turkey, all of which countries absolutely prohibit the entry from the United States of all nursery stock and admit fruit only when the most rigid examination shows freedom from infestation.

It is said that if the Simmons bill had been made a law some years ago the historic elms of Cambridge, Mass., might still be standing, including the great elm, which is still standing but is almost dead, under which George Washington took command of the Continental army of the Revolution. It was the elm-bark beetle which was the chief agent in the destruction of the Washington elm and the other elms of Massachusetts. This beetle slipped in from Europe unchallenged and unnoticed. There was no quarantine to keep the pest out and as a result splendid old trees are now being chopped down to be used for fire wood.

Pests Come From Europe.

The authorities in the department of agriculture have figured it up all very carefully, and have come to the conclusion that more than half of the important insect pests of fruits and farm crops are of foreign origin, and that they now occasion a tax of nearly half a billion dollars annually. It has been reckoned, for example, that the San Jose scale, introduced into this country from north China, and subsequently carried into every state in the Union, has already cost the orchardists $50,000,000, and is adding to this sum at the rate of $5,000,000 a year, this annual charge coming from the expense of spraying operations and from the shrinkage in quantity and value of the first yield. Another recently introduced foreign insect pest is the alfalfa leaf weevil, whose ravages in the great alfalfa regions of Utah are so well known.

No quarantine law, however good, can now repair the damage to property which these pests have wrought, but the future can be safeguarded, and the Simmons bill, it is believed, will go a long way toward accomplishing this end.

CLOUDS ARE LIKE SNOW PEAK

Heaven at Certain Time of Day Resembles Gigantic Glaciers in the Alps.

Berne, Switzerland.—Whoever has traveled in the western states or in Europe knows the beauty and understands the fascination of snow mountains.

At places like Pau, from which on a clear day the whole range of the Pyrenees is visible, or Bern, from which, when the weather is favorable, can be seen the glaciers of the giants among the Oberland Alps, at such places travelers will wait for hours and even for days for the clouds to lift in order to see this sight which is so wonderful. Yet I have often observed at home great white clouds heaped on the horizon which had the same majestic beauty as a distant view of the Alps, the Pyrenees or the Rockies. And no one has stopped to look at them twice or to admire them.

The rosy glow on the Alps at sunset, to see which people will even desert their dinners, the pink glow of sunrise that entices them from their beds in the small hours of the morning—these sights which are so enchanting in their loveliness are surpassed by the coloring of the mountainous cumuli that without going a step out of your way you may frequently see at evening in the western sky.

This thought which has so often passed through my mind was recalled by a sentence written by Sir Francis Younghusband in a book describing Kashmir: "Early in September the atmosphere has been freshened and cooled by the rains which, though they fall lightly in the valley itself, are often heavy in the surrounding mountains. The sun is still powerful in the daytime and the sky unusually bright and clear. But the monsoon will often make a few final efforts. One such day I noted when voluminous masses of cloud rolled up behind the Pir Panjal to a height of twenty-five or thirty thousand feet, their western edges aglow from the setting sun and showing clear and distinct against the background of pinky blue sky, while the great main volume remained dark, heavy and somber, with now and then a split of lightning flashing out, and on the far side, away from the setting sun, threatening tentacles stretched out across the valley in unavailing effort to reach the mountains on the northern side. Under these mighty monsoon masses even the great mountains looked dwarfed and puny. It was a great and final effort of that stupendous natural phenomenon which bears the waters of the Indian ocean to beat upon the Himalaya."

Nothing could give to people who have never seen a mighty range of mountains a better idea of their appearance than the great clouds that pile themselves just above the distant landscape. The soft, rounded summits are more beautiful than the sharp outlines of the mountain ridges, but the mountains are so often veiled in clouds that the similarity of effect is striking and often in the neighborhood of some great snow covered range one is uncertain whether it is the actual heights or the clouds that one perceives from a distance.

WET CHEMICALS FOR FUEL

Inventor Thinks He Has Found Substitute for Coal—Liquid Used to Heat Boiler.

Darby, Pa.—After working on the principle for a long time, George Smith, a well known hot water heater expert, believes he has perfected a compound that will do away with coal as a medium for heat.

Smith's invention, which he says will heat a house at a temperature of 70 degrees in winter and maintain it at that in the coldest winter weather, is an elaboration of the principle of heat generation in water by chemical combustion.

The best units generated play on a wrought iron boiler, instead of cast iron, and thus have the advantage of heating water quicker, because this metal is not as thick and yet it is stronger than cast iron. Once the water is heated to a certain point it begins to circulate through the pipes.

Says There Is No Middle Class.

Montclair, N. J.—At the closing session of the New Jersey State Federation of Woman's Clubs here Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, one of the delegates, a daughter of the late Julia Ward Howe, objected to the use of the term middle class by Mrs. Seth Abrams, another delegate, in referring to the need for playgrounds in cities. "It is a term copied from an English aristocracy," said Mrs. Hall, "and we do not want it. We are a democracy. We have no 'middle class.' We all belong to the first class."

Vogue in Outer Garments.

According to the Dry Goods Economist, at the present time retailers are featuring wraps of charmeuse and satin. The best sellers are the medium-priced numbers retailing from $10 to $30. These are usually attractively lined in some bright color, giving a pleasing contrast. Lace collars and cuffs are often used as a finishing touch and are very effective, while white lace is used largely for this purpose. Some garments are shown trimmed with black lace, which is cut away to show the lining underneath.

The Worm's Way.

"The Hon. Stephen Coleridge, the English anti-vivisectionist," said an anti-vivisectionist of Philadelphia, "is delighted with the recent English vivisection report, which promises to abolish even the use of the live bait in fishing."

"Mr. Coleridge once argued here in Philadelphia about the cruelty of fishing with worms."

"Oh, his opponent said, 'the mere fact that a worm writhes and wriggles when impaled on a hook is no proof that it is actually suffering pain.'"

"No, oh, no!" said Mr. Coleridge, sarcastically. "Beyond doubt that is just the worm's way of laughing at being tickled."

TO MAKE SURE.

Miss Hascolgne—Er-before announcing our engagement, count, I-I think perhaps it would be more satisfactory if you had your-er-title guaranteed.

In the Growth of Corn

there's a period when the kernels are plumped out with a vegetable milk, most nutritious.

As the corn ripens the "milk" hardens, and finally becomes almost flinty.

Post Toasties

Are made from this hard part of choice selected corn.

It is carefully cooked; treated with sugar and salt; rolled into thin bits; then toasted to an appetizing brown—without a hand touching the food.

It has been said that Post Toasties are the most deliciously flavoured particles of cereal food yet produced.

One can render an opinion upon trial.

Manufacturer's Outlet Sale

A Semi-Annual Bargain Event Con- tinuing to Saturday June 22nd

A Number of New York Manufacturers Were Forced to Unload Their Surplus Stocks at a Tremendous Sacrifice

We were right on the spot when the consolidated manufacturers of New York held their semi-annual unloading sale. We were quick to grasp hundreds of the choicest bargains offered. We bought thousands of dollars worth of high-class seasonable merchandise for less money than the actual cost of production.

Their warehouses were crowded with surplus stock; they needed the space; it was imperative that they immediately convert this merchandise into money. They looked to the various merchants of the country for an outlet. The Globe came forth with a cash offer for a portion of stock, with the result that it was readily accepted—the manufacturers willingly taking a heavy loss.

For the past week each freight has brought to us case after case of this merchandise, so that we are now prepared to announce, from the standpoint of economy, the most stupendous sale that has occurred in Waukegan for years.

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 80th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Hotel. The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and starts on his mail trip with dogs and sleds, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensational rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district Harnish buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Daylight reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization, and amid the bewildering complications of high finance, Daylight finds that he has been led to invest his eleven millions in a manipulated scheme. His financial partners with a revolver, he threatens to kill them if they do not return. They are cowed, return to their Francisco where he meets his fate in a large investment and gets into the country. Daylight goes deeper into high finance in San Francisco, but often the longing for the simple life nearly overcomes him.

CHAPTER XIII.

One Sunday, late in the afternoon, found Daylight across the bay in the Piedmont hills of Oakland. As usual, he was in a big motor car, though not his own, the guest of Swiftwater Bill, Luck's own darling, who had come down to spend the clean-up of the seventh fortune wrung from the frozen Arctic gravel. It was a merry party, and they had made a merry day of it, circling the bay from San Francisco around by San Jose and up to Oakland, having been thrice arrested for speeding, the third time, however, on the Haywards stretch, running away with their captor. Fearing that a telephone message to arrest them had been flashed ahead, they had turned into the back-road through the hills, and now, rushing in upon Oakland by a new route, were belatedly discussing what disposition they should make of the constable.

"Well, come out at Blair Park to tea minutes," one of the men announced. "Look here, Swiftwater, there's a cross-road right ahead, with lots of gates, but it'll take us back-country into Berkeley. Then we can come back into Oakland from the other side, sneak across on the ferry, and send the machine back around tonight with the chauffeur."

But Swiftwater Bill failed to see why he should not go into Oakland by way of Blair Park, and so decided.

The next moment, flying around a bend, the back-road they were not going to take appeared. Inside the gate, leaning out from her saddle and just closing it, was a young woman on a chestnut sorrel. With his first glimpse, Daylight felt there was something strangely familiar about her. The next moment, straightening up in the saddle with a movement he could not fail to identify, she put the horse into a gallop, riding away with her back toward them. It was Dede Mason—she remembered what Morrison had told him about her keeping a riding horse, and he was glad she had not seen him in this riotous company. Intervening trees at that moment shut her from view, and Swiftwater Bill plunged into the problem of disposing of their constable while Daylight, leaning back with closed eyes, was still seeing Dede Mason gallop off down the country road.

On Monday morning, coming in for dictation, he looked at her with new interest, though he gave no sign of it; and the stereotyped business passed off in the stereotyped way. But the following Sunday found him on a horse himself, across the bay and riding through the Piedmont hills. He made a long day of it, but no glimpse did he catch of Dede Mason, though he even took the back-road of many gates and rode on into Berkeley. It had been a fruitless day, so far as she was concerned; and yet not entirely fruitless, for he had enjoyed the open air and the horse under him to such purpose that, on Monday, his instructions were out to the dealers to look for the best chestnut sorrel that money could buy. At odd times during the week he examined numbers of chestnut sorrels, tried several and was unsatisfied. It was not till Saturday that he came upon Bob. Daylight knew him for what he wanted the moment he laid eyes on him. A large horse for a riding animal, he was none too large for a big man like Daylight. In splendid condition, Bob's coat in the sunlight was a flame of fire, his arched neck a jeweled conflagration. Daylight examined the mane and found it finer than any horse's hair he had ever seen. Also, the color was unusual in that it was almost Auburn. While he ran his fingers through it, Bob turned his head and playfully nuzzled Daylight's shoulder.

"Saddle him up, and I'll try him," he told the dealer. "Wonder if he's used to spurs? No English saddle, mind. Give me a good Mexican and a curb bit—not too severe, seeing as he likes to rear."

Daylight superintended the preparations, adjusting the curb strap and the stirrup length, and doing the cinching. He shook his head at the martingale, but yielded to the dealer's advice to allow it to go on. And Bob, beyond spirited restlessness and a few playful attempts, gave no trouble. Nor in the hour's riding that followed, save for some permissible curvetting and prancing, did he misbehave. Daylight was delighted; the purchase was immediately made; and Bob, with riding gear and personal equipment, was dispatched across the bay forthwith to take up his quarters in the stables of the Oakland Riding Academy.

The next day being Sunday, Daylight was away early, crossing on the ferry and taking with him Wolf, the leader of his sled team, the one dog which he had selected to bring with him when he left Alaska. Quest as he would through the Piedmont hills and along the many-gated back-road to Berkeley, Daylight saw nothing of Dede Mason and her chestnut sorrel. But he had little time for disappointment, for his own chestnut kept him busy. At the end of half an hour of goodness Daylight, lured into confidence, was riding along at a walk and rolling a cigarette, with sleek knees and relaxed seat, the reins slung on the animal's neck. Bob whirled abruptly and with lightning swiftness, pivoting on his hind legs, his fore legs just lifted clear of the ground. Daylight kept his seat, but, beyond a futile rein across the neck, did nothing to prevent the evolution.

"Well, Bob," he addressed the animal, at the same time wiping the sweat from his own eyes, "I'm free to confess that you're sure the blamedest all-fired quickest creature I ever saw. I guess the way to fix you is to keep the spur just a-touching—ah! you brute!"

For, the moment the spur touched him, his left hind leg had reached forward in a kick that struck the stirrup in a smart blow. Several times, out of curiosity, Daylight attempted the feat, and each time Bob's hoof landed the stirrup. Then Daylight, following the horse's example of the unexpected, suddenly drove both spurs into him and reached him underneath with the quirt.

"You ain't never had a real licking before," he muttered, as Bob, thus rudely jerked out of the circle of his own implish mental processes, shot ahead.

Half a dozen times spurs and quirt bit into him, and then Daylight settled down to enjoy the magnificent gallop. No longer punished, at the end of a half mile Bob eased down into a fast canter. Wolf, telling the rear, was catching up, and everything was going nicely. And when, at last, Daylight decided that the horse had had enough, he turned him around abruptly and put him into a gentle canter on the forward track. After a time, he reined in to a stop to see if he were breathing peacefully. Standing for a minute, Bob turned his head and nuzzled his rider's stirrup in a reguish, impatient way, as much as to intimate that it was time they were going on.

"Well, I'll be plumb gosh darned!" was Daylight's comment. "No ill-will, no grudge, no nothing—and after that lambasting! You're sure a hammer, Bob."

He had taken a liking to the animal, and repented not of his bargain. He realized that Bob was not vicious nor mean, the trouble being that he was bursting with high spirits and was endowed with more than the average horse's intelligence. It was the spirits and the intelligence, combined with what he was. What was required to control him was a strong hand, with tempered sternness and yet with the requisite touch of brutal dominance.

Throughout the week Daylight found himself almost as much interested in Bob as in Dede; and, not being in the thick of any big deals, he was probably more interested in both of them than in the business game. Bob's trick of whirling was of special moment to him. How to overcome it—that was the thing. Suppose he did meet with Dede out in the hills; and suppose by some lucky stroke of fate, he should manage to be riding along, side of her; then that whirl of Bob's would be most disconcerting and embarrassing. He was not particularly anxious for her to see him thrown forward on Bob's neck. On the other hand, suddenly to leave her and go dashing down the back-track, playing quirt and spurs, wouldn't do, either. What was wanted was a method wherewith to prevent that lightning whirl. He must stop the animal before it got around. The reins would not do this. Neither would the spur. Remained the quirt. But how to accomplish it? Bob always whirled to the right. Very well. He would double the quirt in his hand, and, the instant of the whirl, that double quirt would rap Bob on the nose. The horse didn't live, after it, once learned the lesson, that would whirl in the face of the doubled quirt.

More keenly than ever, during that week in the office, did Daylight realize that he had no social, nor even human contacts with Dede. The situation was such that he could not ask her the simple question whether or not she was going riding next Sunday. Thus he found another card in the hand of the mad god had dealt him. How important that card was to become he did not dream, yet he decided that it was a pretty good card.

Sunday came, and Bob, out in the Piedmont hills, behaved like an angel. His goodness at times was of the spirited, prancing order, but otherwise he was a lamb. But no Dede did Daylight encounter. He vainly circled about among the bill roads, and in the afternoon took the steep grade over the divide of the second range and dropped into Maraga Valley. Just after passing the foot of the descent, he heard the boot beats of a cantering horse. It was from ahead and coming toward him. What if it were Dede?

He turned Bob around and started to return at a walk. The center came nearer, but he faced straight ahead until he heard the horse behind check to a walk. Then he glanced over his shoulder. It was Dede. The recognition was quick, and, with her, accompanied by surprise. What more natural thing than that, partly turning his horse, he should wait till she caught up with him; and that, when absent, they should continue abreast on up the grade? He could have sighed with relief. The thing was accomplished, and so easily. Greetings had been exchanged; here they were side by side and going in the same direction with miles and miles ahead of them.

He noted that her eye was first for the horse and next for him. "Oh, what a beauty!" she had cried at sight of Bob. From the shining light in her eyes, and the face filled with delight, he would scarcely have believed that it belonged to the young woman he had known in the office, the young woman with the controlled, subdued office face.

"I didn't know you rode," was one of her first remarks. "I imagined you were wedded to get-there-quick machines."

Thus, and to his great relief, they launched on a topic of mutual interest. He told her about Bob's tricks, and of the whirl and his scheme to overcome it; and she agreed that horses had to be handled with a certain rational severity, no matter how much one loved them. There was Mah, which she had had for eight years, and which she had had to break of stall-kicking. The process had been painful for Mah, but it had cured her.

"You've ridden a lot," Daylight said. "I really can't remember the first time I was on a horse," she told him. "I was born on a ranch, you know, and they couldn't keep me away from the horses."

And there, she told him more of her ranch life in the days before her father died. And Daylight was hugely pleased with himself. They were getting acquainted. The conversation had not lagged in the full half hour they had been together. When she talked, he listened and followed her, and yet all the while he was following his own thoughts and impressions as well. It was a nerve thing for her to do, this riding astride, and he didn't know, after all, whether he liked it or not. His ideas of women were prone to be old-fashioned; they were the ones he had imbibed in the early day, frontier life of his youth, when no woman was seen on anything but a side-saddle. He had grown up to the unit fiction that women on horseback were not bled. It came to him with a shock, this sight of her so manlike in her saddle. But he had to confess that the sight looked good to him just the same.

CHAPTER XIV.

Another Sunday man and horse and dog roved the Piedmont hills. And again Daylight and Dede rode together. But this time her surprise at meeting him was tinged with suspicion; or rather, her surprise was of another order. The previous Sunday had been quite accidental, but his appearing the second time among her favorite haunts hinted of more than the fortuitous. Daylight was made to feel that she suspected him, and he remembered that he had seen a big rock quarry near Blair Park, stated offhand that he was thinking of buying it. His one-time investment in a brickyard had put the idea into his head—an idea that he decided was a good one, for it enabled him to suggest that she ride along with him to inspect the quarry.

So several hours he spent in her company, in which she was much the same girl as before, natural, unaffected, light-hearted, smiling and laughing, a good fellow, talking horses with unflagging enthusiasm, making friends with the crusty-tempered Wolf, and expressing a desire to ride Bob, whom she declared she was more in love with than ever. Against his better judgment, Daylight gave in, and, on an unfrequented stretch of road, changed saddles and bridles.

"Remember, he's grouched lightning," he warned, as he helped her to mount. She nodded, while Bob pricked up his ears to the knowledge that he had a strange rider on his back. The fun came quickly enough—too quickly for Dede, who found herself against Bob's neck as he pivoted around and bolted the other way. Daylight followed on her horse and watched. He saw her check the animal quickly to a standstill, and immediately, with reins across neck and a decisive prod of the left spur, whirl him back the way he had come and almost as swiftly, "Get ready to give him the quirt on the nose," Daylight called.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Officers Show How Army Does Baking

WASHINGTON. — Improvements in present-day methods of baking bread in the field for the army over the methods of only a year or two ago were seen in a demonstration at the Washington barracks, the other day, before a delegation of officials from the war department. Those present were Gen. Henry G. Sharp, commissary general of the United States army; Col. David L. Brainerd and Maj. Henry G. Cole.

One of the feats performed was the loading of an oven, capable of doing the cooking for a hundred and fifty soldiers, on a wagon in seven minutes and three seconds. This was about one-third of the time which a similar demonstration in oven packing had consumed two years ago, according to the officials.

No housewife or French chef could have turned out a better dinner or whiter, brown-crust bread than did the cooks in the open air with their "take-down" ovens, in the opinion of the watchers.

Roast beef, that sent up a savory odor, onion gravy that tempted the palate, and strawberry shortcake, covered with delicious icing, were only a few of the things which were on the bill of fare. Capt. M. A. Elliott, Jr., who is in charge of the bakery at the barracks and who conducted the inspection, assured his visitors that no "tricks" had been added for the occasion, but that it was an ordinary noontime meal.

The bakery at the barracks is known as field bakery No. 1, and comprises one-third of the entire cooking staff of the United States army. It has facilities for cooking for 19,000 men, although only about 10,000 of the facilities were in use. The corps there includes one officer and 65 men. This section also is a school for those who wish to become army cooks.

The demonstration included the use of the older clay ovens and the kind used in the Civil war, and down to the present day type, which can be knocked down in a few minutes ready for transportation in the army wagons.

In the school where the men are taught to cook are hung charts showing food values. Besides this there is an equipment of experimental apparatus, including an electrical oven, used in teaching them the scientific as well as the practical points in cooking.

Finds Huts Upon a Lonely Island

QUIDNUNCS at Washington, those gentlemen who are always asking, "What now?" enjoyed a considerable thrill of mystery and curiosity in discussing the recent report of Rear Admiral Southland, who on board the West Virginia visited Palmyra Island and 51 of lesser islets, lying about 1,000 miles southwest of Honolulu, about 90 miles from Fanning Island.

The Palmyra group, says Chapin's News Letter, was proclaimed a part of Hawaii in 1882, but since it has appeared to the state department only recently that Great Britain had annexed them in 1889, Rear Admiral Southland was dispatched with the West Virginia to explore the group thoroughly and especially to search for any public monuments conflicting with the United States' claim to the islands. His report on this point is very clear and explicit, to wit: "The results are definite in making it clear that no flagpole, notice board, monuments or other surface objects indicating an endeavor to claim sovereignty on the part of any nation exists on this island." No living person was found in the archipelago, although bird life abounded.

The most mysterious find was a little settlement of three huts in a densely wooded slope of Islet 61, the presence of which was thoroughly screened from anything by the closest search. Two of the huts were roofed with corrugated iron and one with thatch, and there were stoves, tables, shelves, jars, bottles and other evidences of a continued occupation at no very distant period. One hut, with a new door and good lock, contained a large number of cedar cases of Oriental make, several of which had been labeled by pasting a slip of Japanese paper on the ends and writing over it. One case was thus labeled: "This case contains ammunition, May 7."

While there is no harbor at which a vessel might coal or a naval base be permanently established, the group could be used for the accumulation of supplies or the rendezvous of an expedition intended to carry out a design dependent for its success on secrecy.

Human "Goat" in Postal Department

A HUMAN "goat" was discovered the other day in the postoffice department. No, it was not Postmaster General Hitchcock.

John R. Rhoades is employed in the supply division of the department. It is the principal duty of Rhoades to mail together the large boxes filled with postal supplies for postmasters in every section of the country.

As is customary with those who are engaged in a similar task, Rhoades took up a mouthful of wire nails. By some unforeseen circumstances one of the nails escaped his fingers when it was about to be pulled from his mouth, and went down his throat.

He was choked for an instant. Then some of his co-workers called up an ambulance. They thought he would choke to death unless medical aid was rendered at once. The ambulance from the Providence hospital arrived and Rhoades was hurried to the institution. The physicians at Providence were especially busy when Rhoades arrived. He waited for half an hour. No one came to his assistance.

"I can't afford to wait any longer," declared Rhoades. "I will be choked if I stay away from the department any longer."

He left the hospital and returned to his work. The nail was still clinging to some part of his internal anatomy.

"How does it feel to have swallowed a nail?" Rhoades was asked. "Well, I have swallowed many a fish bone, and I don't feel any other sensation than that created by taking into my system one of the small bones of a shad," he replied. "I can breathe all right, and feel absolutely no inconvenience, but I would like to have this nail removed. I waited long enough at the hospital today to have my appendix taken out, but apparently the physicians were too busy to attend to my case. I felt compelled to get back on the job, for postmasters all over the country are howling for their supplies."

Electrician Fries Eggs by Wireless

ELECTRICAL discharges of hundreds of volts, an electric globe burning without any wire connection, egg frying by wireless, wireless telephony and telegraphy, and other electrical phenomena, and also wonders of liquid air, were demonstrated in a lecture by Professor L. H. Wood and Henry L. Transmont, an electrical expert, at the Washington Foreign Mission seminary.

The electrical discharges were seen flashing in long spectrallike streams, which snapped and crackled like lightning. By changing the terminals, the flashes resembled small electric fountains. Mr. Transmont, holding his hand near one of the terminals, received into his body a current of at least 200,000 volts without any injury.

A wonder to the audience was the frying of the egg without any visible power, but there was heard the sizzling and the low hum of the transmitter, which was not connected with the pan. Two hundred of the audience heard through the receiver of the wireless telephony a voice that came from the transmitter in another part of the building. The auditorium being darkened while wireless telephony was demonstrated, it was illuminated by the brilliancy of the discharges, the noise of which was deafening. The lighting of a common incandescent globe by wireless followed. A hollow copper ball floating in a jar of water was rotated with great rapidity, and a heavy copper ring was suspended in midair, and then thrown upward several feet, also by wireless.

Professor Wood is a teacher of science in the seminary and Mr. Transmont a student. Mr. Transmont has constructed much wonderful electrical apparatus.

PROPER CARE OF NEWLY HATCHED CHICKS

Real Comfort in the Dust and Sunshine

By D. O. BARTO, Associate in Poultry Husbandry, University of Illinois.

In the care of baby chicks, the right thing to do is to make them comfortable all of the time. Think for a moment how delicate must be the machinery of these little bodies which have been built up from the albumen of the egg mainly in the short period of 21 days. How little resistant powers they must have to withstand unfavorable conditions. What they need for the first three days is a warm, dry place to sleep and rest and digest the yolk of the egg which was taken into their bodies just before their exclusion from the shells. Don't try to induce them to eat or drink at all during this period. It is often the cause of serious bowel troubles to feed them earlier.

It is not possible to go into details in this article in regard to the kind of a brooder to use, whether it shall be heated or fireless. The one thing to remember is that unless they are comfortable and happy, they will not thrive, and many of them will die; and they will surely let you know if they are happy by the contented, purring sounds they make, by the flapping of their little wings and stretching of their legs, and by the way in which they flatten themselves out on their stomachs on the floor of the brooder. If they cry and bunch together in a corner of their brooder, something is wrong. Find out at once what it is, if you can, and remedy it. They are probably too cool. The essential conditions to bear in mind are warmth, dryness, fresh air, sunlight or bright, cheery surroundings, cleanliness, freedom from lice, and an abundance and variety of good nutritious food together with clean water, sharp grit and charcoal.

What a lot of things to remember and look after. Yet that is what "mothering" young animals means. Does it pay? It surely doesn't pay to raise them if you don't do it. To make poultry raising a success these little things must not be forgotten or neglected.

Paradise Brooder in the Cellar.

HOME MECHANICS ARE IMPORTANT

By ISABEL BEVIER, Professor of Household Science and Head of the Household Science Department, University of Illinois.

The term home mechanics is a very familiar one, but unfortunately the term home mechanics is very unfamiliar. The most beginning has been made in that field. In fact, only two machines are in anything like general use in the farm home, the sewing machine and the washing machine, and the latter is often of the crude type. There may be a little something in the argument that women as a rule have no strong affinity for machines or mechanical devices, and therefore do not seek their aid, but in the opinion of the writer the difficulty lies far deeper, viz., in a very general misconception of the activities for which provision should be made in a well equipped farm home. The activities there conducted combine those of a bake shop, a laundry, a dairy, a restaurant, a bathhouse, sometimes a hospital, as well as a place for rest, recreation and social enjoyment.

For any one of these, heat, water and light are regarded as essential, and no meager supply, either, but that which is abundant and easily controlled. A restaurant or dairy without water and a bake shop without adequate provisions for heat are not to be considered. Let us understand, then, that farm mechanics and home mechanics have no impassable gulf between them, that they are not at opposite ends of the poles, that one might possibly speak of farm mechanics and home mechanics, but that home mechanics, in its true meaning, includes farm mechanics. Otherwise, our definition is sadly deficient. Surely, the farm without the home is as the body without the spirit, and surely those who till these broad acres, and who toil in summer's heat and winter's cold, who plow and sow and reap, do it not only that they may gather their stores into barns, but that as healthy, happy human beings, the day's work is done and the evening's shadow call to rest and recreation they may find both in the farm home with those they love and with whom they toil.

Let us consider, then, how some of the so-called farm machines can be used to lighten the labors of the housekeeper. The house will have furnace heat, and, by whatever power water is carried to the barn, that same power will carry it to and through the house, where provision will be made for hot water, also.

The gasoline engine can be utilized in running the washing machine, the wringer and the churn. If electricity is available it can be used for a complete laundry outfit—washer, drier and mangle. Moreover, by its aid a vacuum cleaner will do the family sweeping. It will also save a large part of the time devoted to the dusting process. So much for the machinery for washing, ironing, sweeping and churning.

Brewing and baking are still to be considered, and there are few places where greater care needs to be exercised than in the selection of the kitchen stove. Women and stove manufacturers need to co-operate in deciding what really constitutes essential factors in a good stove. It is quite generally agreed that among these are a good firebox, thick walls, well insulated that will retain heat, a well insulated oven not on the floor, so that baking process means practice in kneeling, but at the side and at a height easily managed when a woman stands upright. The drafts should be so arranged that the heat generated can be controlled and kept in the neighborhood of the stove, not sent up the chimney. It must be so constructed that it can be easily cleaned. Enamelled ware has been long on the market, and a joy to its users, and enamelled stoves are now to be had, but if one hesitates to afford these, at least plain, smooth surfaces can be insisted upon. If it is a gas stove, a simmering burner is a very desirable feature, because it gives just the temperature which is best suited for some forms of cooking, and it is a real gas saver. Some means of indicating the temperature other than the time-honored "feel" of the hand is desirable. A fireless cooker is a desirable addition to this outfit, not only because it saves fuel, but because the kitchen can be a much more comfortable place in which to work if one is used.

CONSTANT DRAIN ON NATION

Cost of Tuberculosis and Other Preventable Diseases Has Been Put into Figures.

While state commissions and other bodies are trying to find a method for reducing the cost of life insurance, Prof. James W. Glover of the University of Michigan demonstrates that every policyholder of a $10,000 ordinary whole life policy could save about $20 a year on his premiums if tuberculosis and typhoid fever were eliminated. Tuberculosis alone causes a loss to such a policyholder of from $16.70 at twenty to $17.50 at the age of sixty. At age of twenty, with the present high death rate from tuberculosis, this one disease alone shortens the complete expectation of life by two years and 168 days. While the death rate from tuberculosis seems to be declining, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis says that the combined effort of every man, woman and child is necessary to bring about a radical reduction in life insurance rates such as Professor Glover has indicated.

IT IS CRIMINAL TO NEGLECT THE SKIN AND HAIR

Think of the suffering entailed by neglected skin troubles—mental because of disfigurement, physical because of pain. Think of the pleasure of a clear skin, soft, white hands, and good hair. These blessings, so essential to happiness and even success in life, are often only a matter of a little thoughtful care in the selection of effective remedial agents. Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexion, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a postal to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston, will secure a liberal sample of each, with 32-page booklet on skin and scalp treatment.

The Studebaker Automobiles are Built on Honor

A Quiet Advertisement to Men who Think

E-M-F "30" Touring $1100 Flander "20" $800

Amid the noise of much automobile advertising, we will speak quietly. We have something to say. We want men who think to listen.

This is our story: We are building E-M-F "30" and Flanders "20" automobiles—building 50,000 of them this year—and selling them to men of moderate means and also of large means, but all alike in one particular. The investigate, criticize, make comparisons and prove the value of what they buy. They think.

Years of honest dealing and skillful manufacture have given the name Studebaker a great prestige. It has become a principle. Into every E-M-F "30" or Flanders "20" automobile built goes the reputation and integrity of that name and what it stands for.

Every Advance Step in the World's History was the first met with more or less opposition, prejudice and hostility. But true merit wins and for this reason THE IMPERISHABLE SILO at once wins the favor of all "good builders," who wish a structure permanent, economical and satisfactory. Its patented hollow blocks of vitrified clay have double dead air spaces to prevent severe freezing. They absorb no moisture and will never crumble or decay. An IMPERISHABLE SILO never blows down, which is in marked contrast with stave silos. Superior to concrete for it is acid-proof and non-porous. It keeps the silage perfectly clear up to the wall. Cannot crack or bulge from pressure of silage at the channel block carry steel bars buried in mortar, protected from air and cannot rust. These afford abundant strength and are warranted to resist silage pressure.
